WILL GRADE BOYS

SAME AS LIVESTOCK

Des Moines, Iowa, June 27.—The boys of Iowa are to be graded on their degrees of physical perfection at the state fair this year in the same manner as are prize winning cattle, according to the score card for standardized measurements prepared by the Iowa Public Welfare league and accepted by the state fair board for a boys' health contest to be conducted by the league during the fair.

To raise the physical standard of the boys of Iowa is the purpose of this contest, which is to become an annual affair. The league thus hopes to promote good health and symmetrical development without the use of apparatus. It prescribes a few simple exercises to be practiced each day by the boys who become contestants. Cigaretts, tobacco and alcohol are tabooed.

The league will restrict its work this year to the boys, but expects next year to make possible the establishment of a permanent bureau for scoring girls for physical development.

PLANS FOR OGDEN CEREAL PLANT ARE DELAYED

Ogden, June 27.—Until M. S. Browning, president of the Utah Cereal company, returns from the east it is likely steps will be taken toward the drawing of plans for the Ogden plant, local directors say. Upon the return of Mr. Browning, they say, Supt. Francis E. Walsh and the president will confer with a local architect with the view of having the plans ready in time for building operations this fall.

"You folks are being taken up by society, aren't you?"

"Well, we don't believe in bragging but we know three ladies who smoke cigarettes."

OGDEN ENTERS THE CLEAN CITY CONTEST

That Ogden will be a leader in the campaign for clean, sanitary and healthy cities in Utah this year has been made certain by the action of Mayor Fell in officially entering Ogden City in the campaign started by the Utah Development League. The official action gives the municipal approval to the plans of the League of Good Citizenship and other organizations, which have already started the work of beautifying the city and adding to its attractiveness through plans for a most complete expurgation of the tin cans, weeds, ash heaps and other unsightly and unsanitary conditions.

Exactly how much in earnest the Ogden people are regarding the work was demonstrated recently when steps were taken for wholesale betterment of the community. Orders were issued to have the weeds cut from vacant lots within twenty days. If they are not removed the city will take action to see that the property is properly cleaned up. The city sanitary department renewed its campaign against the flies with vigor. The school board arranged for the repairing and improving of schools. Not long since, both the city and county commissioners decided to have the public buildings renovated and cleaned thoroughly. These are the public steps that serve as an indication of the private purposes.

Such steps do not only mean that Ogden is to show its best in the Clean City campaign, but also indicate that the municipality is to hold up its record as a city of health. The death rate in Ogden is low every month. During 1914 it has been lower than before. The last report of the state board of health shows that contagious disease cases are becoming rare here. Cleanliness will give a further decrease. Ogden will reap rich benefits from the campaign that has been started and which, primarily, was brought about, as far as this municipality is concerned, by the efforts of the members of the various women's clubs of the city.—Ogden Examiner.

RAILROAD SUES MAN FOR COLLIDING WITH ITS ENGINE

Newark, N. J., June 27.—Because he collided with a locomotive and had three ribs smashed a hip bone broken and suffered internal injuries, F. H. Wilkinson has been sued by the Erie Railway Company.

The company claims he bent the engine pilot and knocked the paint off and asks $100 damages.

First Wilkinson sued for $2000. That made the Erie mad and it sued for damages to its engine and removing litter and pieces of wood and wreckage from its track at the spot in Bloomfield, New Jersey, where Wilkinson and his milk cart were scattered over the scenery.

THUNDER BOLT MOVES SHAVING OUTFIT

Vineland, N. J., June 27.—During a thunder shower that broke the long drouth, a ball of fire cut curious capers in the home of Louis Castellena on Grant avenue. Five children were seated around the table when the lightning ripped open the tablecloth in several places, cut the linoleum on the floor in several places, singed the hair of one child which was on the floor, changed the talcum powder from the box to the shaving mug on the shelf and put the shaving brush into the talcum powder box.

The frame work of the kitchen was splintered in several places, but none of the family felt the slightest shock.

A bilious, half sick feeling, loss of energy, and constipated bowels can be relieved with surprising promptness by using Herblene. The first dose brings improvement, a few doses puts the system in fine vigorous condition. Price 50c. Sold by Riter Bros. Drug Co.—Adv.

A Brief Sketch of Confucius

Suppose we deviate for once and consider one of the very old masters. Yesterday was the anniversary of the birth of Confucius.

Had he taken a Rip Van Winkle sleep and wakened yesterday he would have been twenty-four hundred and fifty-five years of age. He lived on earth seventy-three years.

It must have taken pretty much of a man, in that obscure age, to so impress himself upon the world, that embalmed him and has saved him from forgetfulness through all the succeeding centuries.

What he taught would not be wonderful if advanced now, but where did he obtain the inspiration, with his surroundings, to make a code like his?

When he was born his country was in a state not unlike that of Mexico today. There was fighting everywhere and the land was given over to turbulence, violence and frequent assassinations. It was just when an ancient feudal system was about to give away to a monarchy, and every chief was seeking either for power and plunder or to save his own life. The China of Confucius' day was a small country about the size of our state of Texas. All accounts agree that Confucius was of the best stock of the land. His father was a high officer and great soldier but he left his son no fortune and the boy had to carve out his own career.

He was when but a child a passionate lover of knowledge and sought every means to be a scholar. He is called a great philosopher but in truth he was a greater statesman than philosopher and on a thousand occasions he made clear that he possessed all the elements of a great soldier. No danger could appal him, no hardship could bring a complaint from his lips, though he would grow pale when it thundered.

He must have been the most magnetic of men for one of his devoted followers kept his vigil by his grave for five years after the great man died. His teachings were good but they were all for men. He had no reverence for women. Still his great work through life was to elevate his fellow men and to make the burdens upon the poor less hard to bear.

He had great faith in himself and in answer to a question said: "What the superior man seeks is within himself, what the small man seeks is in others."

His resolute soul asked no odds. To study his character ought to cause any thoughtful man to reverse Christianity more and more.

There was no softening influence to humanize his life.

If he had any opinion or hope regarding a future life he never expressed it. He was absorbed with the present only. He believed in justice but never dreamed of obtaining it through any other means than superior intelligence and force. There was little of pity or compassion in his nature, indeed despite his masterful mind he was an out and out heartless.

He could grasp anything in government or business, he exulted in so much of science as had in his day come to the world, but all the splendors of creation and the fitting of this world to be a habitation for man never caused him to strain his eyes upward to see if he might not find a beneficent cause.

Hence his life, marvelous as it was, was really a life spent in the twilight for the splendor around him he never stopped to investigate, nor sought to find a reason for them. He watched the seasons advance and recede. He saw the earth after it had borne a harvest grow cold and still and the winding sheet of the snows drawn over it; then after a space he saw the sun that had wandered away return and send its beams to melt the snows; saw the earth revive and put on its spring garb of leaves and flowers and bring forth another harvest; but was never stirred by a thought that this might be typical of man's life, death and resurrection.

He watched the stars in their processions but never sought to learn by what divine power they moved year after year with no jar in their state ly rounds.

He saw the grain that was sown apparently decay, but a little later spring into life, that man and bird and beast might be fed, but never thought that it must have been a merciful as well as all powerful mind that planned the miracles that were being performed around him.

So as the story of his life comes down to us we can the better realize that until the world was softened and exalted by Christianity, man and nations, no matter how enlightened they became, were still of the earth, grossly earthly.

Even the nations that believed in gods or in the one God, were hard and cold and with them might made right. It was so in Assyria, in Persia, in Egypt, in Greece and Rome, and when the Master came preaching peace and good will, they but followed a natural instinct when they crucified Him and with fire and torture pursued His followers to the death, until the effluence of the light from the cross began to melt the ice in the hearts of men and to teach them compassion and mercy.

Huerta may be bottled up, says a headline. Huerta has been bottled up for years.

DO NOT RAKE GRASS AFTER USING THE LAWNMOWER

It Disturbs the Soil, Says Federal Expert

Washington, June 27.—Cut the grass frequently; leave cuttings where they fall and do not use an iron rake unless grass or clover seed is to be planted, is the advice of the department of agriculture experts in a bulletin, just issued, on the proper care of lawns.

Landscape gardeners of the department declare also that lawn mowers should be set high so that the grass will not be cropped close. They declare that raking or sweeping disturbs the soil and that if the clipped grass remains where it drops it will form protection to the roots and keep the lawn in good condition during dry weather.

SOUTH DAKOTA TO HAVE BANNER YEAR

Prosperity Enthusiastically Pointed Out to St. Paul Boosters' Special

Brookings, S. D., June 27.—There is just one crop in South Dakota that may not be a bumper this year. That is the prairie chicken crop.

They have had so much rain out here that the nests were flooded, killing off some of the young and driving out many others not yet able to fly.

As the St. Paul jobbers and manufacturers' special train rolls by the smiling miles of wheat and corn, these fledgling chickens are seen scurrying about, and there seems to be enough to pull even the chicken crop through.

Rain has come down by many inches the past few weeks and in any other country it might prove too much of a soaking, but there is a natural drainage through South Dakota that quickly absorbs even a torrent.

South Dakota's Best Year

Possible hot winds next month have lost most of their terrors, and this will be South Dakota's best year in several past.

The 80 St. Paul men aboard the special are enthusiastic about the trip and are finding fine fields for trade development in a territory where they already are well represented.

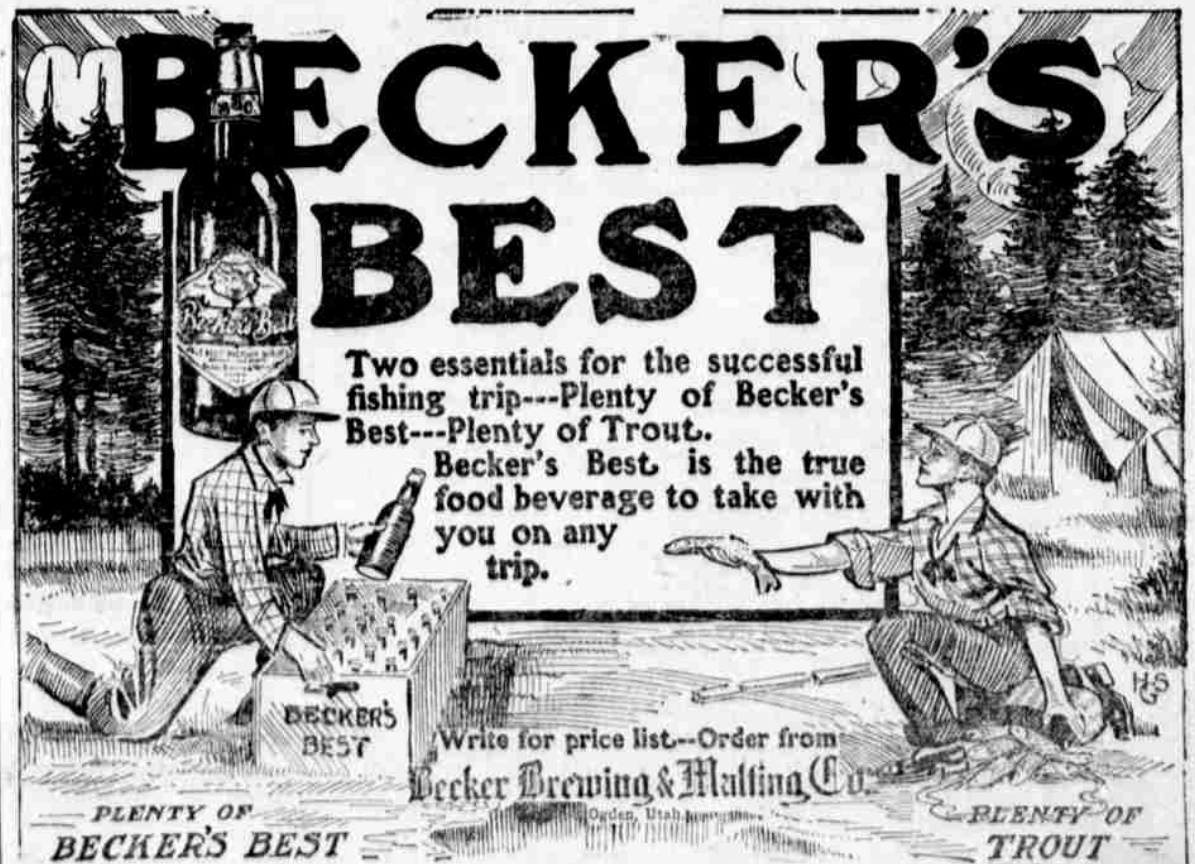

HER ASHES BY STEVENSON

Children Respect Wife's Wish for Lone Samoa Tomb for Both

Los Angeles, June 27.—In the fulfillment of her last wish, the ashes of Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson will be placed beside the body of her husband on the summit of Mount Vaca Samoa. Before the door of the tomb will be inscribed the last stanza of Stevenson's verse to his wife:

Teacher, tender comrade, wife:
Fellow-farer, true through life;
Heart whole and soul free
The August Father gave to me.

To this tomb there will be no means of access except a rough mountain path. When the will of Mrs. Stevenson, who died in Santa Barbara several months ago, is settled, her children, Mrs. Strong and Lloyd Osborne, will take her ashes to Samoa. The ashes are now in San Francisco.
